Book Notes

The following annotated bibliography of picture books in children's literature is a 2009 update by the Goodling Institute for Research in Family Literacy for use with the class and take-home activities in Andrea DeBruin-Parecki's Let's Read Together: Improving Outcomes with the Adult-Child Interactive Reading Inventory (ACIRI) <http://www.brookespublishing.com/store/books/debruin-parecki-67625/index.htm>.

This booklist was created to support the implementation of the ACIRI in Pennsylvania (PA) family literacy programs. Feedback from PA pilot programs indicated the need for more class and/or take-home activity book recommendations for younger preschool children as well as more wordless and/or nearly wordless books for ESL/ELL families. Therefore, many of the additional books in this list were chosen with consideration to those two audiences. If you have any questions on the additional book selection criteria or would like to know more on how to choose books for the families in your program, contact the Goodling Institute for Research in Family Literacy.

-  This title can be adapted for use with one or more of the adult-child interactive reading activities in the English Activities and Activity Sheets sections of the ACIRI manual. This book supports the development of the targeted ACIRI behavior and the suggested classroom and/or take-home activity.
-  This title was currently out of print when the updates were compiled. Print status changes frequently. Books go in and out of print for a variety of reasons, so check your local library, Inter Library Loan system (for example, PA Access) or used book seller (such as Alibris.com) to get a copy.
-  This is a wordless picture book or nearly wordless picture book. The illustrations in these books tell the entire story – plot, character development, and key story elements. These books build visual literacy skills and develop language skills when used interactively between adult and child.
-  This title is available in a Spanish language or bilingual edition. Please note that the publisher of the second language book edition may not be the same as the English language publisher and/or have a different print status than the English language edition.
-  This title won a national award or was honored on a distinguished book list. One of the book awards represented is the Caldecott Medal for most distinguished illustrated book for a publishing year. Book lists represented include the American Library Association's Notable Book List as well as the regional list compiled by The Pennsylvania Center for the Book called the Baker's Dozen – The Best Family Literacy Books.
-  This book supports themes in diversity. This book either
  - (1) Features illustrations or issues of one or more of the many cultures found in the United States, such as Peter Sis' Madlenka, which pictures a sampling of the many cultures found in one block in New York City or;
  - (2) It is an international book. International books are first published outside the United States showcasing the work of a global author/illustrator. International books typically highlight the perspective of the country that first published the book. For example, the book Possum Magic is written and illustrated by native Australians Mem Fox and Julie Vivas and features animals and food found specifically in Australia.
-  This title is available as an audio (cassette, CD, digital audio file/MP3) or visual (VHS or DVD) version. Please note that the publisher of the AV edition may not be the same as the printed text edition and/or have a different in print status than the original.
